The Brookfield Bank Robbers.

Sr. Louis, June 9.—The Brookfield bank robbers are surrounded a few miles northeast of Macon by five hundred men, and their capture is considered certain. Two of the pursuing party have been slightly wounded and one of the robbers is badly hurt. If they attempt to break through they will be shot down without mercy.

A Post-Dispatch special, just received, says that the Brookfield bank robbers were captured this morning.

The claim is made that there is not now a necessity for eight carts being employed, as a less number would answer quite as well and be equally satisfactory to the people. The Board of Health, which has heretofore had discretionary powers in this matter, would perhaps not have that number employed, and would thus save a considerable sum to the city. The street sprinkling operations as follows: month of June, $575.50; July, $780; August and September, cach, $624; October, $432.25; November, This shows that a saving has been effected by the Board of Health in controlling the number of carts used weather and short days approached. The entire cost of sprinkling the streets last year, says the Mayor, was $3,278.25 His estimate of the cost for the ensuing year is $4,290, an excess of about thousand dollars. A portion of this increased cost is on account of a higher rate being paid for a portion service than heretofore but it is quite probable that the cost could be brought to approximate that of last season with judicious management. To procure a preper service at the lowest rate is what the people want and if this can be better accomplished otherwise than by the ordinance it is hoped the Mayor's veto may be sustained. If the ould control it as in their judgment they may deem best. Following is

To the Honorable Council of Los Angeles
City:

I herewith return to your honorable body an ordinance for the sprinkling of streets of said city, adopted by you on the 13th of May, 1882, without approval.

This ordinance makes it the duty of the Council to see that certain streets therein enumerated are kept free from

This the Major details because, he for some time, bec says, he thought it of little consequence. After much importuning from his Masonic brother, he finally consented, and was duly inducted into its mysteries, where, he says, the higher degrees were like advancing into new worlds of historical, religious and intellectual light, whose sublime lessons and injunctions filled him with surprise.

The precepts and principles taught, the the boligations required, and the duties imposed, in no way antagonize with the Bible or the fundamental principles of eligion; on the contrary, they enlighted the initiate regarding many mystical points in the Old Testament, and explain much that has become mythologically obscure and bewildering regarding the ancient people of Egypt. Its grand purpose is the fraternal brotherhood of unamity, universal freedom, individual right of thought, speech and action. Its central thought is the existence of a Supreme Sovereign Being, the author and controller of all things, invisible and incomprehensible to the finite mind, supremely perfect in every attribute, man being his created counterpart in attributes and powers. It teaches that real life consists of an endless succession of advancements in light and knowledge, earth-life being simply our initiation into the first degree, and that no one can advance faster than development fits them.

Within this order, for thousands of years, was secured all the knowledge known to men.
